Spring Fancies. Ladies are ordering for the country half high shoes, which are coquettish imitations of the peasant shoes worn by the women of the Black Forest, Germany. Some are made in prunella, but those for young ladies are of kid, and the more elegant ones, for their mammas, of black satin. The last are trimmed with ruching and with a bow which has a diminutive dog's head upon it or tiny antlers. Another decoration, the successor of the "Alsatian" bow for the hair, is the "fly" bow, which is made of black lace or silk, and imitates the unspreading wings of an insect precisely on a larger scale, while the way in which they are set on the head renders the "flare" all the more uncompromising. A dul! lustrous silk is considered more becoming to fair haired wearers than a shining fabric; and when lace is used it is always real.

A quaint little head-dress is a three-cornered 'kerchief of satin dotted with tiny flowerettes on gold or silver filigree. This is worn with a point extending to the forehead, and is pinned down to the head with gold or silver headed pins, precisely as a lady would pin a handerchief over her head in the days when ladies did such things while sweeping or dusting. Below one edge of the 'kerchief the hair is arranged in flat rings, and at the back is long braids

One of the queer freaks is the sudden rage for yellow or yellow and red combined-fortunately in small doses. "crash" of yellow buttercups, cowslips, daffy-down-dillys, or red and yellow roses combined, is a feature of spring costume. It is the most striking adornment of black fully regulated to the complexion of the wearer, the most delicate blonde being venders for the last 50 years, you will find the silk or satin toilettes and the shade is carefully regulated to the complexion of the Stop making a drug store of your stomach. Stop putting bitters, pills, liver invicorator, blood purifiers, caloniel, blue pill, quinine, morphine, and all other drugs and quack medicines into your stomach, they kill instead of curing the body. This is my advice, after a constitution of the property of wearer, the most delicate blonde being able to wear the buff and straw yellows, while the deeper orange and nasturtian tints can only be ventured upon by a most decided brunette.

Bow and arrow combs are a pretty conceit, in which the arrow is crossed by the bow, which sparkles with crystals. The metal is gold and silver, and on the silver combs the ornamentation is pearls, mock or real. One of these combs is made still more elaborate by a chain of crystals forming the bowstring, which hangs as if relaxed. Seldom is a comb so prettily fashioned and ornamented.
